For An Editor to Recommend Patent Medicines?

From Sulvan Valley News, Breward, N. C. It may be a question whether the Editor of a newspaper has the right to publicly recommend any of the various proprietary medicines which flood the market, yet as a preventative fused. You must play the game or of suffering we feel it a duty to say a good word for Chamberlain's Colle, Cholers and Diarrhora Remedy. We have known and used this medicine in our family for twenty years and have always found it reliable. In many cases a dose of this remedy would save hours of suffering while a physician is awaited. We do not believe in depending implicitly on any medicine for a cure, but we do believe that if a bottle of Chamberlain's Diarrhoea Remedy were kept on hand and administered at the Curious Facts That Have Been WILLIAM D. #### ONLY ONE TIPPLE HERE.

The Only Saloon in the World Where You Can Buy But One Drink.

London boasts of a saloon where a LOW PRICES. man can have only one drink-and no smoke. It is located just off Bishopsgate and in rather a low street. Nor may that one drink be a horn of plenty. Printed rules adorn the wall, and no rule has ever had a single exception. After one drink the tippler who wishes another must go away-go far away and out of sight-and not come back until after the lapse of at least 30 or 40 minutes. No one who shows sign of having had too much may have a drink at any price. Then, too, the hours of closing are far more civilized than those of most public houses. Of course, over and above the regular customers many people are attracted to this inn out of pure curiosity. The sight-seeing and novelty-hunting American finds it out in his rambles. Should the curiositymonger, however, try to coax the men servers behind the bar into a breach of their stern laws he is courteously renothing. In fact, the list of carefully compiled rules concludes with an intimation that such oustomers as do not care to conform thereto are "respect-

Brought to Light in a New England Town.

The statistics relating to the care of the poor are often interesting. In a certain New England city, says a writer for the New York Times, they allow the people who need the city's aid three follars a week, and they order at certain stores what they please up to that sum weekly, and the bilis are sent to the city auditor. The auditor, as he reads the bills, is greatly callglitened as to the diet of the poor. There are frequently raisins, citron and things that are not usually supposed necessary to support life, but one poor woman broke the record when in the bill for one week's supplies it was found that 26 pies had been purchased. That, at ten cents a pie, exhausted $2.00 of the city's money and there remained 40 ents to supply the family with necessities. Another poor woman had purhased at the expense of the city a pair of corsets.

"I don't know that I believe in dress reform for women," commented the auditor as he read that item, "but It seems to me that this creates a precedent that may make it rather hard on the city." However, being a man, the auditor could hardly be expected to know what are the necessities of life for a woman:
